Life outside.
Our most authentic side.

Life outside. It's who we are.

The Mediterranean is our place of origin, the place that has defined our way of living and how we relate to space. Here, home does not end at the threshold; it extends into the outdoors in a natural, fluid manner.

We, like you, grew up with light filtering through half-lowered window blinds, we learned to seek out shade in the height of summer and to turn to face the breeze. Daytime is marked by light, temperature and how the sun hits the building fronts. Windows are left open for cross-breeze, and doors are open longer than the seasons allow.

Architecture responds to the weather, and life adapts. Thick walls keep cool air in, and windows are opened wide, with houses extended by patios and balconies. There is no strict boundary between the inside and outside, because the climate and culture have never needed it. Eating on the deck, taking shelter in the shade of a tree and long afternoons outside are customs passed down from generation to generation.

This lifestyle is the inspiration behind “Life outside. It's who we are”: the expression of a culture that lives life open to the outdoors while still feeling at home.

As a brand born in the Mediterranean, this is our way of preserving and upholding what defines us.

In the fresh air

We decided to pay homage to our way of life through one of Spain's most recognisable customs: taking chairs out into the fresh air. A custom that is repeated when night falls, when the heat subsides, and grandmothers head down to the street with their chairs to chat with their neighbours.

This depicts an everyday scene that represents shared moments, community and a way of open-doors life. A simple image that summarises the natural relationship between the indoors and the outdoors that is so characteristic of the Mediterranean.

Living both inside and outside

A collection prepared to withstand the passage of time and adapt to different spaces and outdoor lifestyles.

Designing in the Mediterranean requires carefully considering the context we live in: the intense light, everyday use of outdoor spaces and the impact of time on materials. It involves choosing solutions that can coexist with the sun and understanding how each space is used over the course of the day. It assumes that the outside, just like the inside, is a part of the house.

The collection is based on this premise: pieces designed to maintain their character both inside and outside, developed according to criteria that consider durability, functionality and aesthetic coherence.

Erice

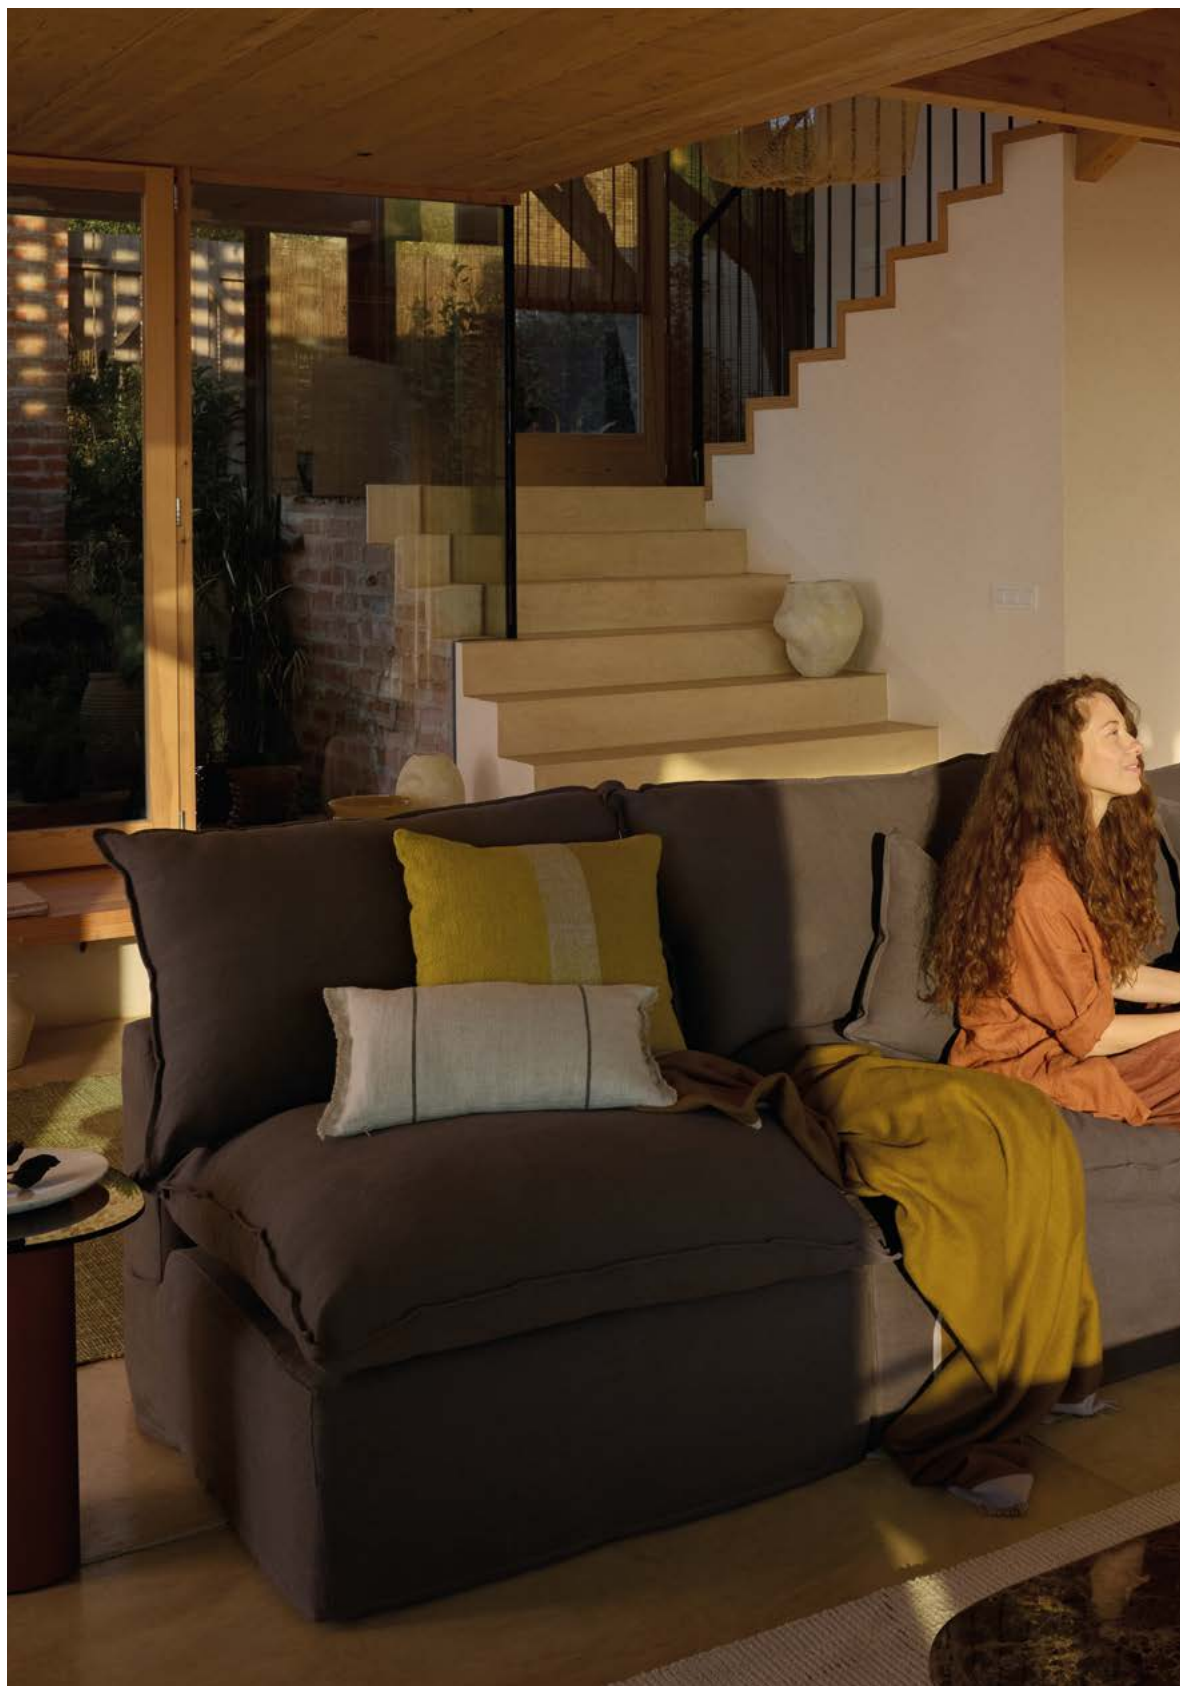

Simple forms and handwoven detailing define this collection. Aluminium shapes the structure, tempered glass brings a sense of lightness, and woven rope adds texture. Together, these elements create a considered balance, designed to transition effortlessly between indoor and outdoor living.

Atrani

Handwoven rope is tensioned over a galvanised steel frame, creating a flexible seat with a supportive base. Lightweight yet durable, each piece is designed to move seamlessly between outdoor and indoor spaces.

Derile

Solid oak and handwoven paper rope cord come together in a single piece where the materials speak for themselves. The matt finish highlights the texture and natural grain of the FSC[™] certified wood, emphasising the handmade process.

Arelida

Oak is the defining component of each piece, whether veneer or solid wood. Soft lines and rounded edges enhance the natural grain. Made in Europe with FSC™ certified wood in a finish that highlights the material nature.

Alipa

The warmth of the timber, with its natural grain, is balanced by the texture of the woven seat, softening the overall structure. Designed for outdoor living, each piece is made to maintain its character over time.

Here, home is in constant dialogue with the outdoors.

Parasols

Available with a central pole or cantilever, these parasols adapt to the movement of the sun, extending shaded areas any time of day.

Tavari

A collection featuring lightweight yet strong pieces designed for indoor and outdoor use. The handwoven rope cord adds texture and warmth while the steel structure cuts a clean, timeless silhouette. A collection that blurs the boundaries between inside and outside.

Aldet

Rope cord and light come together in a portable lamp designed for the outdoors. The woven shade casts unique light patterns, while the integrated solar module allows you to adjust the intensity as you wish. A piece designed to enhance the outside ambience in the evenings.

Certifications

Our focus on durability and quality is backed by certifications that guarantee responsible practices and rigorous processes.

FSC® Chain of Custody

We hold the FSC® C161507 Chain of Custody certification, which ensures the wood used comes from responsibly and sustainably managed forests, complying with the established standards at each stage of production.

Responsible Down Standard

We work with suppliers certified according to the Responsible Down Standard, which guarantees that the down and feathers come from responsible sources, respecting animal welfare and the traceability of the material.

OEKO-TEX®

We work with fabric and textile suppliers that hold OEKO-TEX® STANDARD 100 or OEKO-TEX® STeP certifications, ensuring that the textile materials meet strict criteria in terms of safety, health and responsible processes. This external endorsement reinforces our approach to furniture: designed to last, made with rigour.

Leather Working Group

We collaborate with suppliers recognised by the Leather Working Group with a Gold or Silver rating, attesting to excellent environmental performance or good environmental practices in leather production, assessed by independent audits.

Global Recycled Standard

We work with suppliers certified by the GRS (Global Recycled Standard), which ensures that recycled materials are used throughout the supply chain, in compliance with environmental and social criteria.

Products for intensive use

At Kave, we offer a selection of products designed to meet the needs of highly demanding environments.

Commercial Selection

Certified for intensive use.

the selection

The pieces in this category are developed and evaluated according to specific criteria for professional projects, where strength, stability and durability are essential. Each piece is subjected to tests specific to its nature to guarantee its performance in high-use contexts.

These items have recognised European certifications for the contract setting: EN 581:2017 for outdoor products, EN 16139:2013 for indoor seating and EN 15372:2017 indoor tables. These standards verify that the items meet the standards required for use in non-domestic spaces. Thanks to these tests and certifications, this selection offers the reliability needed for daily use in non-domestic spaces, without giving up the curated design and materials that define Kave.

Performance+ Selection

Engineered for intensive use.
Tested to endure.

Discover
the selection

At Kave Lab, our internal laboratory, we test a selection of products to check their performance under intensive use conditions. The pieces in our Performance+ selection are subjected to specific tests that simulate an above-standard level of rigour. These tests follow protocols that are equivalent to those used for products in the contract selection, and evaluate strength and durability according to each product type.

Kave applies the same sales guarantee conditions to this selection as it does to the contract products, despite not having a formal certificate. These tests allow us to confirm that they are ready for the most demanding rhythm of use, while maintaining the same curated design, materials and finishes that define the brand.

Interior Design Service

Helping you create a space that's uniquely yours.

A home is born from the way each person lives their life. That is why we work by observing and listening, understanding what each space needs before acting. On that basis, we build a well thought-out proposal, with tailored solutions and pieces selected with discernment. A design that does not follow fleeting trends but defines a space that fits each person naturally.

Our stores

Each store is an open door to our way of living. They are places where time stands still: to take a closer look at materials, proportions and details. Some are found in historic buildings; others, set in contemporary contexts, in dialogue with the present. But they all share the same intention: to reflect our way of understanding home. A vision that endures. A vision that is here to stay.
